“After years of attempting to establish a formal qualification for flooring installers, we eventually succeeded,” said Allan deWit, Director of Technical Services for Belgotex Floorcoverings Ltd. of South Africa. “We now have government approval for our programs that are running through Sparrow Further Education and Training Colleges located in the Western Cape, as well as our traditional installation programs that have been a part of our offerings in the past through the success of the Belgotex Floorcoverings Academy. The four-year programs are offered at the Van Kerval School in George and also at the Weskus School in Sakdhanha Bay, which began in 2008.

Also attached is an initial article concerning the first of three trips to South Africa made by Jim Walker, CEO; Ed Braile, CFI Certification Team Chairman and John McHale, Managing Director of CFI.

This was a great opportunity for CFI to share the value of quality installation with those in another country. The fact that it has transformed into installation training centers places a high value by Belgotex Floorcoverings on serving their customers.

CFI is presently working with several countries to implement training programs in the future.
